

Brooklands Racer Reimagined

A motorcycle called the Wadkin-Snaith Brooklands Sprint Special, built from scratch to look like a Brooklands Sprint motorcycle from the 1920's, is included in the Charterhouse auction of classic & vintage motorcycles on Wednesday 30th June at the Haynes International Motor Museum.

“It is beautifully designed, created and built by specialist engineer Carl Wadkin-Snaith,” commented George Beale. “This 500cc machine is truly a work of art and would look well as an exhibit in any collection or museum.”

The motorcycle took over 4 years to build and was finished in 2016. No castings were used for the engine and gearbox as all components were machined from solid using non C&C machines.

The Wadkin-Snaith Brooklands Sprint Special

The Wadkin-Snaith Brooklands Sprint Special has performed very successfully and attracted a lot of attention when it has been shown at various events where it also won many awards.
