

Even the Kitchen Sink to be Sold in Hotel Auction

Charterhouse Auctioneers in Sherborne have been instructed to sell the entire contents of a large Bournemouth hotel, right down to the kitchen sinks!

The Grange Hotel, Southbourne, Bournemouth, has been a popular venue for holiday and other visitors for many years. Having been in current ownership for over 20 years, it is now time to retire and this landmark seafront hotel will be redeveloped.

“Everything is up for auction with 100’s of lots on offer. It is an excellent opportunity for other hoteliers, publicans, restaurateurs and B & B owners to buy items at a fraction of their cost new. The hotel has 28 en-suite bedrooms, there are two full restaurants which are supplied by two extensively equipped kitchens along with bar equipment, air conditioning units, carpets and curtains throughout. There is even the baby grand piano which has recently been fully restored.” Commented Naomi Grabham. “However, one of the more unusual lots going under the hammer will be the contents of the pond which includes a selection of Koi Carp!”

The auction, which is held on site at The Grange Hotel, Southbourne, starts at 11am on Thursday 18th March. Viewing for the sale is on the sale day only from 9am and catalogues will be available on the day.

For further information regarding this auction, please contact Naomi Grabham at Charterhouse, The Long Street Salerooms, Sherborne, Dorset 01935 812277 or go to their website www.charterhouse-auctions.co.uk