

A little bit of Jersey in Dorset

A large oil painting with a view towards Elizabeth Castle, St Helier, Jersey, is being sold by Charterhouse in Sherborne in their specialist painting auction on 5th July.

“We have a great selection of art, both ancient and modern in the auction.” Commented Richard Bromell. “However, whilst this painting ticks many boxes for me, the main attraction is because rarely do you see a view of Jersey.”

Painted by Richard Beavis, who died in 1896, it is a romanticised picture of civil war soldiers in a military chain crossing the sands with Elizabeth Castle towering above.

The painting, which spent decades hanging in the dining room of a Tudor manor house near Salisbury, is estimated at £1,000-£2,000.
